

United States Online Gaming

Monthly Statewide and National Data

Center for Gaming Research, February 2015

This report collects in one place publicly-available data on online gaming in the United States. Currently, Nevada, Delaware, and New Jersey offer various kinds of online gaming.

Nevada allows betting only on poker; Delaware allows betting on table games, video lottery, and poker; and New Jersey permits casino games and poker.

Currently, New Jersey dominates the market, with about 90 percent of total U.S. online gaming revenue. Nationally, poker represents about one-third of total online gaming winnings.

Note: In December 2014, Nevada stopped releasing data for interactive poker.

This chart breaks down the total online gaming win by state, and by poker vs. bank games (in which players bet directly against the house).

Nevada

Nevada has “interactive poker” only, with data for all three operators aggregated. This table shows the total monthly interactive poker revenue, the total monthly poker revenue, and the percentage of total poker revenue represented by poker. Nevada stopped reporting interactive poker revenue in December 2014.

- TPR: Total Poker revenue
- IPR%: Percentage of total poker revenue that was generated online.

Note: Nevada has had interactive poker since April 2013, but only began publicly reporting revenues in February 2014. However, because the Gaming Revenue Report supplies the year-on-year percent change, it is possible to calculate the approximate past online gaming win on a trailing annual basis. This table will be updated as new data is available.
